DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections 35 U.S.C. 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-31 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Colonna et al. (USPN 6115620) in view of Vance (USPN 6389302).

Regarding claims 1 and 4, Colonna teaches about a portable communication device (100), hinge assembly (214), first housing element (202), and second housing element (204) that is movable relative to first housing. See column 3, lines 61-67, and column 4, line 16. In addition Colonna teaches about a sensor producing a position signal to indicate the position of the second housing element relative to the first housing element. See column 2, lines 45-51 and Fig 2.. However, Colonna does not teach a touch sensitive circuitry providing the position of a contact force applied by the user on the moveable housing element. Vance on the other hand teaches radiotelephone (10) including a battery (20) and piezo-ceramic member (30) mounted to a radiotelephone housing(11) that is positioned to contact the battery. Vance further teaches that the battery moves in response to the deflection generated force of the piezo-ceramic member and contacts two spring-loaded power circuit contacts (13, 14). See col. 5, lines 10-15, 45-60 and Fig 1.

Art Unit: 2674

Therefore, it would have been obvious to one skilled in the art at the time the invention was made to modify Colonna's portable communication device to include Vance's piezo-ceramic member including the circuit contacts (13, 14) configurations. One would have been motivated in view of the suggestion in Vance that the desired position of contact force and touch sensitive circuitry can be equivalently obtained by Vance's piezo-ceramic arrangement. The use piezo-ceramic member along with circuit contacts helps function a portable device such as radiotelephones and cellular phones as taught by Vance.

Regarding claims 2-3 and 28, it has been discussed above.

Regarding claims 5, 9, 18, 27 and 31, Vance teaches the side of the battery which can be formed with a low friction sliding material. Vance also teaches the use of keypad in connection with radiotelephones. See col. 5, lines 66-67, col. 11, lines 4-7, Fig 2 and Fig 11A.

Regarding claims 6 and 7, Colonna teaches about a controller (106), user interface (110) with respect to RF signals. See column 2, lines 65-67, and column 3, lines 1-7.

Regarding claim 8, Vance teaches a piezo-ceramic member of capacitive in nature. See col. 11, line 62, Fig 16 and Fig 17.

Regarding claims 10 and 29, Colonna teaches about different types of input devices as well as different electronic devices such as radiotelephone and PDA. See column 2, lines 60-65. Also see column Fig 2 and 3

Regarding claims 11, 21-26 and 30, see Colonna's Fig 2 (206, 208).

Art Unit: 2674

Regarding claim 12 and 16, Colonna teaches the use portable communication device including the use of speaker phone mode which is illustrated in terms of a switching process. See col. 1, lines 5-11.

Regarding claim 13, Colonna's teaches about sensor circuitry. See Fig 8.

Regarding claims 14, 17, and 19-20 Colonna teaches about speaker (10) and radiotelephone system. See Fig 12. Colonna also teaches about, keypad (206) along with controller (106), user interface (110), and 19 and transmission of RF signals data including voice and control signals. See Fig 1, and 2.

Regarding claim 15, see Colonna's's Fig 3.
